New Demo offices in flap

A swirl of controversy surrounds the Pleasanton Democratic Club following charges by supervisorial challenger Valerie Raymond that the club's endorsement of incumbent John Murphy was pushed through a meeting. Club president Gene Hinton, shown above, checks over voting materials with former president and current Pleasanton Vice Mayor Joyce LeClaire. The new headquarters opened this week at 425 Main St.

BART's bad Bob at it again

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Incumbent BART director Bob Allen will fight the first round for reelection in superior court when he tries next week to beat back an injunction sought by his Danville opponent.

Allen, facing his first election test since he joined BART's board of directors two years ago, fired off letters to opponents John McCardle of Danville and John Ferguson of Hayward warning them he personally would tear down any signs illegally posted on public rights - of - way or on private property without the owner's permission.

McCardle, incensed at what he called Allen's "vigilante letter," immediately sought a temporary restraining order. The order has been denied by Presiding Superior Court Judge Robert K. Barber, but the two will argue their case again next week when McCardle goes after a permanent injunction.

"I simply told them that I'm not going to post any illegal signs, and I don't expect them to, either. And I invited them to join in the abatement campaign," said Allen.

But to McCardle, it "smacks of right - wing conservatism."

Allen's philosophy "is to run things and control things and he doesn't want opposition," said McCardle. "If he is successful, he makes it an incumbent party system. That smacks to me of the right - wing conservative 'we know all the answers to everything.' "

Allen admits his program benefits the incumbent, "but I have torn down signs in other elections. I've habitually done it even in races where I've had no particular interest.

"The point I was trying to make is that we should all be equal. If one is going to post illegally, others should, too." But that, he argues, leads to a jungle of political postings.

Signs have "very little true merit" in a campaign. "They're there for name recognition."

The state's Outdoor Advertising Act "clearly says no to putting up signs in public rights of way," he said, including public property, or within view of any scenic or interstate highway.

Before he tears down any signs, however, he'll make a list and take photographs for the judge.

McCardle told the press he is paying $2,500 to a reputable, experienced firm to handle his sign campaign. They will post signs as they have in the past, said the challenger, and he won't tolerate Allen or anyone else tearing them down.

Allen's letter, he said, is "gross intimidation" and "smacks of a vigilante letter."

Ferguson said Allen "can do what he pleases. If it's not within the law, we have procedures for dealing with people like that."

Gravel plan stirs doubts of park district, Zone 7

The Valley gravel companies' proposed 50 - year reclamation plan is being discussed with cautious optimism by at least two outside public agencies that would be greatly affected by its implementation.

The East Bay Regional Parks District and the Zone 7 water management agency would each have lead roles in different areas if the master reclamation plan, released earlier this week, was carried out to its full extent.

Proposed by a consulting firm hired by four Valley gravel companies, the plan includes a series of lakes south of Stanley Boulevard, possibly joining Shadow Cliffs and winding south into the existing Arroyo del Valle.

These lakes could be filled with water and adopted as recreation areas after quarrying operations ceased, the same way Shadow Cliffs Lake was developed, consultants said.

Left unanswered are such questions as who pays for the water to fill the quarries, where would it come from, what agency would maintain the water levels, and what effect would it have on the underground water table.

If the holes are filled with water, new questions arise: who will maintain the area as recreational parks, build access roads and parking lots, and maintain and patrol the massive area.

Mun Mar, manager of Zone 7, has been advised of the proposed reclamation plan from the beginning. He feels that enough details of the plan haven't been worked out to provide room for comment, but gave possible answers to hypothetical questions the plan raises.

Assuming quarrying operations ended and a series of large holes were left, they would be at least partially filled by the natural movement of underground water, Mar said.

"If, for example, the water table is 40 feet below ground level, and extractors dig down 140 feet, then the lake will have 100 feet of water," Mar said.

That would mean 40-foot high banks around the lake's perimeter, too steep for easy access as a recreational area. Could water be pumped in to raise the lake?

"I don't see it as possible that the lakes would be filled all the way up," Mar said. He cited barriers as the result of gravel harvesting operations, plus the cost of water and natural slope of the ground as obstacles.

Instead, a "range of levels" could probably be maintained by using pumps or gates in the series of lakes. "It's really a function of where the Valley is in that point in time," Mar said, looking to environmental issues, growth constraints, or other unforeseen occurrences that could change the situation entirely.

"I think the water will be there, because of ground water movement," Mar said. The underground water table has been rising in the past few years, "partially because of Zone 7 operations," and should fill the lakes in part.

"They're trying to design the thing so it would leave more than a series of random holes. It's realistic from the standpoint of harvesting, and they made an effort to come up with land masses that can be useful after quarrying operations cease," Mar said.

Lewis Crutcher, chief of planning and design for the parks district, said his agency is just now being briefed on the reclamation plan. "We have every reason to be involved in that plan, because Shadow Cliffs would be affected," he said.

Crutcher said he had hoped the plan would call for a single, larger body of water instead of several small ones.

"They're talking about quarrying the Arroyo. That would devastate the area," Crutcher said, but added, "I think we could work out a reclamation plan that would work."

Access to the new park would not create any problems, Crutcher said, because most people use the park on evenings and weekends. Present roads would handle the expected load, he added.

Fill deposits south of Stanley Boulevard could be made into small islands in the lakes, Crutcher said. He said he would like to see those bodies of water used for skiing, sailing and other purely recreational purposes.

"What is done there will affect Shadow Cliffs and the Arroyo, so we're interested," Crutcher said. "After all, it's the biggest ball game in town." — by Bill Cauble

Teacher rep raps district

Amador Valley Teachers Association president Tom Zach, visibly tired and apparently frustrated at 21 negotiation sessions without settlement on a 1976-77 teaching contract, described the Pleasanton School District administration tactics as "transparent" at a meeting with news media Thursday.

"They intend to surface negotiate on the issues, but offer no real compromises in the expectation that our negotiatiors will tire of the process and accept a magnanimous salary proposal of 2.5 per cent so long as we forfeit our rights," Zach commented.

The AVTA representative council, which speaks for the bulk of kindergarten through eighth grade teachers at seven district schools, believes basically that the contract "must be a bilateral agreement binding on both parties if it is to have any validity. Also, only by mutual agreement may the contract be altered."

Zach contends the district has "consistently insisted the school board have the right to unilaterally 'rescind any pertinent' part of the contract if they declare at a board meeting that an emergency, 'an act of God or a natural or other disaster exists, which is beyond the control of the district or the Association (AVTA)."

Next negotiating sessions are tentatively set for Wednesday and Friday .

A general meeting of AVTA has been called for Tuesday, Sept. 28 at 3:45 p.m. at the Pleasanton Hotel. Zach said he hopes to have a California Teachers Association (CTA) staff member present to serve as a reference person.

At a session with valley newspapers Thursday afternoon, Zach and the teachers' negotiating team was present to discuss their views, answer questions and present copies of a three - page "negotiations alert," which goes to unit members.

Zach said the representative council is "looking at the possibilities" such as a boycott of extra duties (as attempted in the Murray School District) and a minimum duty day (as carried out Wednesday in the Amador Valley Joint High School District).

He added no attempt has been made to date to ask the district to join with teachers to bring in a mediator from the American Arbitrators Association.

"I think what they're trying to do is drag it out so long that we'll eventually say 'the heck with it' and settle. Another thing that has bothered us is the lack of preparation when Mr. (Keith) Breon comes to the negotiations table," commented Zach.

"But I don't believe it's Breon," he added. Someone over their (district administrative offices) just doesn't want to settle— they're stonewalling," added Zach.

On the "negotiations alert" to members, the unit's position on agency shop, assignment and transfer, grievance procedure, hours and salary were repeated.

On agency shop, they contend that SB 160 REQUIRES that AVTA, CTA, and the National Education Association provide all services to non-members as well as members if they are in the bargaining unit. "We do not believe that members should have to pay for the services that non-members must be afforded."

The fee, which covers AVTA, CTA, NEA and Americans for Better Citizenship membership, is $165 a year. The latter group is the lobbying "arm" to seek out and encourage legislators receptive to educational needs.

On assignment and transfer, AVTA has argued that the present policy "is too vague, and the deadlines in it are so late in the school year that it does not provide adequate time to find alternate solutions to involuntary transferring teachers. Specifically, we asked that involuntary transfers be based upon seniority, academic qualification, and teacher welfare in that order."

On salary, AVTA alleges "a common management bargaining technique is to buy off our rights with a large raise in return for our dropping major items protecting teachers' rights. In the spirit of compromise, AVTA even lowered its salary request from a cost of living to a 5.5 per cent across the board raise."

The district previously put a freeze on salaries at the 1975-76 level. —by Al Fischer

Kaiser quarry impact is 'negative'

The determination by Alameda County that a start by Kaiser Sand and Gravel on a 460 - acre quarry required no environmental study was based on a score of 15 favorable evaluations of that project out of 19 possible standards.

It is that "negative declaration" which City of Livermore has said it will challenge in the courts in order to "force the industry out into the open" on the total question of "responsibility for those depleted pits."

A reading of the county's negative declaration, signed by Planning Director William Fraley, reveals that in each of 15 evaluations the Kaiser application was found to have no or "insignificant" impact on the local environment.

The Kaiser quarry — potentially the largest of any in that 3000 - acre expanse being strip mined by four companies — was found to have a "negative" response to such statements as ... "Possible effects of the project are individually limited but cumulatively considerable" ... "The project has the potential to degrade the quality of the environment (or) to the disadvantage of long - term environmental goals."

The project was also found to be not in conflict with "environmental plans and goals adopted by Alameda County" and neither would it "substantially affect the visual or aesthetic quality of an area ..."

The only adverse findings of that quarry by county staff dealt with "substantial" disturbance of the existing terrain, located on an active fault, and "project may significantly affect the ... ground water and ... loss of agricultural lands."

Kaiser had first been granted a permit (Q 53) in May of 1967 to extract material from that 460 - acre parcel near Busch Road east of Pleasanton. A later county requirement that a reclamation plan must also be filed before quarrying could actually begin was waived when it was agreed that a Master Reclamation Plan now being prepared by all four major extractors will be ready for county consideration by mid - 1977.

The Alameda County board of supervisors granted Kaiser interim permission to begin taking up to 35 feet of overburden from that Busch site over a period of two years, or when the Master Reclamation Plan is adopted if that occurs earlier. Livermore city council challenges that finding and Mayor Helen Tirsell asserts "we're ready to fight this in court."

Police officer loses appeal

LIVERMORE — A former police officer's bid to gain reinstatement to his job has been formally rejected by the city council.

Officer Phillip Gessini of the Livermore Police Department had sought reinstatement after first resigning his post, in January of this year and over alleged conflicts with his superiors.

Council met in executive session Wednesday night and on Thursday the announcement was made by Assistant City Attorney Gary Reiners: "Council considered the appeal and after deliberation denied reinstatement."

Gessini, 28, had served over two years on the force.

Hundreds find how to beat 'growth freeze'

The new home construction slowdown and the maturing of valley communities has led to a construction pattern where additions to existing homes outnumber building permits issued for new construction.

Local building and planning officials reflected on this unusual (for the valley) situation which has developed over the past couple of years.

Pleasanton's Chief Building Inspector, Chuck Dobbins, said that as a community adds more homes, the number of additions is bound to rise proportionately just because there are more homes in the total housing stock. But even the percentage of room additions has risen, said Dobbins. This reflects a couple of facts about the housing market.

Homes are priced high now and discouraged by high prices and higher interest rates, people see that the cheaper route for them is to add space to the home they already have.

The added value to their homes will result in a higher assessed valuation, but chances are monthly payments would not rise anywhere near where they would for a new home, he said.

Most of the home additions are done by contractors. Do - it - yourselfers confine themselves to very small projects, said Dobbins. Virtually all projects require a building permit because the city ordinance states that any job with a value over $20 in improvements must have one.

Pleasanton statistics also include patio covers and decks in their "alterations, additions and repairs" figures, but still they give a good idea of what's going on in the contest between new homes and additions.

Pleasanton last month had permits taken out for eight new homes with an estimated assessed valuation totaling $374,600. There were 32 permits issued for alterations, additions and repairs with a total value of $80,900.

Livermore's Chief Building Inspector, Herb Street, said the maturing of a community is also a factor in room additions.

"People move in and patios and fences are the first things they put in. After 10 or 15 years the kids grow up and we get additions for rumpus rooms and rooms for in - laws," said Street.

Permits issued for room additions in Livermore are running from three to six a week and few new homes are being built. Last year 539 permits were issued for residential alterations, additions and repairs, including patio covers and decks. New home permits issued that year totaled 86. In the previous year it was 325 alteration permits and 12 new homes.

"There just are not many home new homes available and people find it more economical to add to their present house. Many people are not able to qualify for new housing so they stay where they are.

"I know my son is looking for a place. He finds it difficult to qualify for a lot of the housing on the market, the new housing," said Street. — by Ron McNicoll

HIGH NEW HOME COSTS and maturing of families are causing more valley residents to add rooms to their homes rather than move into a newer or bigger home. Pleasanton and Livermore report more building permits issued for room additions than for new home construction, since the building slowdown hit the valley. (Times Photo)

CAC urges change at Murray School

DUBLIN — The Citizens Advisory Committee of the Murray School District completed work on a report and recommendation last night, urging conversion of Dublin School to seventh - eighth grade use.

The completed work now goes to the Murray Board of Trustees at their next regularly - scheduled session Monday, Oct. 4 at Donlon School in Pleasanton.

Basically, the CAC is recommending the organizational pattern of K-6 and 7-8 schools be retained.

If the CAC recommendations are agreed upon by trustees, Dublin could be converted to a seventh - eighth grade facility by the start of the 1977-78 school year. It would mean that present kindergarten through fifth grade students would go to other schools.

Worksheets with this prospect detailed are contained in the body of the report.

Also contained in the report are comments on seventh - eighth program reports, a review of the parent survey on the conversion versus status quo issue (which ended in a 40-40 deadlock with 18 per cent expressing no strong feelings), demographic information supplied by Allan Richards (hired by the district for a fee of $500), school planning and a financial report.

Under the school planning heading, the committee reports that a representative of the State Department of Education, Bureau of School Facilities, says the district is not qualified for State Building Aid at this time due to the present enrollment and the house count projection for two years.

Committee members note in the report that many districts throughout the State have converted elementary to intermediate schools and intermediate to elementary.

The committee reiterated that it was strongly influenced by the board charge to seek a plan that would provide similar educational opportunities for all students.

At last night's meeting, the committee concluded that no more than two seventh - eighth grade schools would be able to provide an optimum program for all students.

Part of the reasoning for selecting Dublin is that existing space at Fallon, Murray, and Nielsen will be utilized more fully.

Committee members also believe the openness of the Dublin School plant better meets the requirements of junior high students. They also have expressed the opinion Dublin is a better location, being west of the freeway (Wells is east).

The report to the board admits the recommendation will require busing of additional K-6 pupils ... but says the advantages of conversion outweigh the factor of busing when the total student population of the district is considered.

In light of the recommendation, the committee says it realizes that categorical aid programs such as Title I and Early Childhood Education will have to be modified. The panel has learned this is possible within existing State and Federal guidelines.

Estimated cost of converting Dublin include moving of two portables, $4,000 total; setting up kitchens for home economics classes, $2,000; providing shelves for the library in what is now the kindergarten rooms, $9,000; busing, $25,000, using present buses.

The CAC is making the recommendation and submitting the report after five months of meetings.

In the past two months, considerable opposition has arisen, originally from just the Dublin School area, for conversion of that school and busing of any K-6 students out of their "home areas."

Residents - In - Action turned in petitions recently containing 1,308 signatures supporting such views.

When Frederiksen School was under study for conversion, several parents in that area started a petition drive, utilizing the petition form worked up by the RIA.

Board members have indicated they are aware of the RIA's action, though they were not setup by the board as was the CAC.

Thompson may keep housing appointment

PLEASANTON — The city council's challenge asking Housing Authority Commissioner Bill Thompson to resign because he moved outside the city got a thumbs down ruling from the Attorney General yesterday.

Assemblyman Floyd Mori notified City Attorney Ken Scheidig that the Attorney General's opinion requested by the city and Housing Authority attorney Bill Struthers holds that Thompson may keep his seat.

Thompson plans to resign when his term expires at the end of this year.

Vice - mayor Joyce LeClaire, who brought up the challenge at a city council meeting a few months ago, said yesterday that she did not raise the challenge as a personal attack on Thompson. She thinks he has done a fine job on the Housing Authority. But she felt that the principle of having city residents on city commissions was at stake.

Two other council members, Ken Mercer and Frank Brandes, agreed with her and they voted to ask Thompson to resign. He declined and the Housing Authority turned the question over to the Attorney General with Scheidig's concurrence. Both sides felt it was not a question worth litigating in court.

The Pleasanton council appoints Housing Authority commissioners and LeClaire thought that the city could have jurisdiction over residency requirements for the commissioners.

However, the Attorney General said that the state sets requirements for Housing Authority commissioners and this takes precedence over any city ordinance which would try to govern the question. The state has set no residency requirements for commissioners so in effect it is all right for Thompson to serve on the board and live outside the city.

The Attorney General's office noted a similar question was raised in 1953 and the opinion rendered then is still valid.

LeClaire said yesterday that she still doesn't think it is appropriate that people who sit on city commissions are living outside the city, but "if that's the Attorney General's ruling, we don't have any choice. I haven't spoken to the city attorney's office. Most likely we will drop it."

Thompson said that he is pleased that the Attorney General's opinion agreed with his own interpretation of the law.

Trustees to study Williams' contract

Murray School District board members have scheduled a closed personnel session Monday night to discuss Superintendent Donald Williams' status with the district.

Trustees will meet at the district offices on Brighton in Dublin at 8 p.m.

When scheduled by Dr. Ted Woy, board president, it was assumed the meeting would be concerned with the status of contract negotiations with teachers.

But The Times learned Thursday the session would deal with Williams' contract, and possibly his performance to date.

Williams, who has been superintendent the past six years, had his contract renewed for two years in December. Thus, he has a little less than 1½ years remaining.

Trustee Bob Foster assailed Williams on various points at a board meeting Monday night, culminating by recommending the board review his contract prior to Dec. 15. The date is when a board must give notice if it does not intend to renew.

Williams' contract is renewable on a yearly basis.

Trustees were taken aback by Foster's repeated criticisms of Williams on his alleged deletion of comments from the minutes, a breakdown of current enrollment figures and the resource teacher program as it affects Donlon School.

Foster cited Williams for alleged lack of planning abilities.

Since the criticisms came at the tag end of a public session, trustees may be huddling Monday to go over ground rules for future discussions of Williams' status with the district.

Uranium find reported

Lawrence Livermore Laboratory researchers have discovered a possible new source of uranium in a western Nevada lake, it was announced.

Walker Lake, about 50 miles from Carson City, may contain 600 tons of dissolved uranium, a level 30 times higher than found in seawater. Other bodies of water contain uranium, but usually in far smaller amounts.

The Lab study is part of the Energy Research and Development Administration's National Uranium Resource Evaluation (NURE) program.

Uranium can be recovered from water, but the cost factor is as yet undetermined. While seawater is basically a continuing source, a lake could be quickly drained of uranium if reclamation procedures were undertaken, a Lab spokesman said.

The Lab is responsible for hydro - geochemical and stream - sediment surveys in the seven western states. That data is used to systematically determine the distribution of uranium in surface and underground waters as possible indicators of the presence of uranium in nearby areas.

The concentration of uranium in Walker Lake was found during the first step of the seven - state study, which includes a 4,000 square mile are of central and western Nevada.

The University of Nevada's Desert Research Institute, operating under subcontract to the Lab, assisted in the study.

Sampling will continue in central Nevada, and expand to other parts of the state and other states later in the year.

Challenging Rep. Pete Stark

Livermore Republican seeks upset

A "people" candidate who didn't know where to find the Republican party headquarters 18 months ago, Jim Mills is mounting a campaign that he really believes will land him a spot on Capitol Hill this January.

Mills is the shirt-sleeve owner of Mills Transportation in Union City and a resident of Livermore.

He is contesting Rep. Fortney Stark, a well-entrenched Democrat with a 2-1 registration advantage, for the 9th District Congressional seat.

Ebullient and possessor of what might be considered basic, old - fashioned values, Mills was turned on to the conditions in his home area after years of toil seemed to be increasingly siphoned off by local, state and federal tax coffers.

The tax situation, particularly as it was affecting residents of Greenville in Livermore, led to formation of the Southern Alameda County Tax Reform Committee.

Mills relates how the above, in tandem with a zest to learn "what our representative in Washington,D.C. is doing," spurred him to spend a week in the Capital researching the Congressional Record and speaking with government employees.

Mills decided to explore the idea of running for office and went to Elmond Holbrook of the Livermore Republican Assembly, who informed him the Republican Party was looking for someone to challenge Stark in the 9th District.

It wasn't long after that Mills, a native of Hayward and Hayward High School graduate, was totally immersed in campaigning, including attendance at some of Stark's "Constituent Days."

"It depends a lot on your motivation," enthuses Mills. "As long as you have the intestinal fortitude, anybody can run for office. I still happen to believe in the American dream and the little guy's chance to succesfully seek office.

"We're just people. I go to work each day because I've got to. Where are these guys like Stark and Dellums coming from? They're ensconsed in their own little world and they could care less for you and me.

"Accountability ... that's what's at question. When you get into politics it's just the other way. Put off until tomorrow what you should do today...."

Asked the number one problem facing district residents, Mills responded — "taxation and inflation."

Mills said government has got to get off deficit spending. "You know, Pete Stark is a great spender of other people's money for this program and that program. But where does it end?

"There's no way a business can conduct operations the way this country does and hope to remain solvent," charges Mills.

"I can't afford to borrow at 18 or 20 per cent ... but maybe at 8 per cent, though," added Mills.

Mills charged that an atmosphere is being created in the Bay Area where industry is moving out.

He believes the citizenry of the valley should keep a firm hand on both environmentalists and developers, declaring he's a middle - of - the - roader on the issue.

Yet he sees nothing wrong with the prospect of more people coming to the valley as the result of the improvement and widening of Highway 580 through the canyon.

"I'm a firm believer in the free enterprise system. What's wrong with people coming out here. There is plenty of pollution - free industry that can be attracted," Mills stated.

Mills added he opposed subsidies, however.

Asked what he would do about the abundance of government agency and staff employees, Mills said one of his first actions if elected would be to seek a review of various agencies to see where unnecessary personnel could be cut.

"I wouldn't have qualm one about going out to the Lawrence Livermore Lab to see what's going on there," he commented.

"Anything that has a vital affect on this district is open to question," he opined.

Underscoring his emphasis on fiscal responsibility, Mills said "I'd like to build in an incentive to save versus an incentive to spend. I've looked at government accountability the past 18 months and spent a week in Washington, D.C. to determine if I could do any good if elected. I found, much to my elation, that there ARE people who are solid citizens, working 16 to 18 hours a day."

Mills believes there's a solid 30 per cent of Republicans and Democrats who'll vote with their respective bodies, leaving a 40 per cent "swing" vote. "If I can get 21 per cent or more of that I'll win."

"I think Pete Stark is his own worst enemy. He's 180 degrees opposite to what popular opinion is," Mills contends.

His (Mills) only public endorsement to date has come from Joseph Bort, an Alameda County Supervisor.

Mills will get a major campaign boost on Oct. 19 when William Simon, a member of the President's cabinet, appears at a fundraiser at the Hyatt House on Hegenberger Road in Oakland.

Livermore trustee hits board for bugging administration

LIVERMORE — It's not often that school board members criticize each other's behavior, but trustee Ken Engelund is doing just that as he asks his colleagues to stop ordering around the administration.

At Tuesday night's school board meeting, Engelund said board members seem to be taking over some decision - making which is supposed to be the domain of the superintendent of schools and the personnel director.

In selecting a new principal for Granada High School, for example, the board departed from their usual practice of letting the superintendent make the final selection. Instead, they asked Superintendent Leo Croce for the names of three recommended candidates, and chose the new principal themselves.

They're also planning to use that process to name a new director of personnel this month, charged Engelund.

In addition, the board got involved in fundamental - school planning and members have been confronting individuals on the staff for information, "putting the staff member in a bind and creating credibility problems," according to a statement Engelund read at the public meeting.

"We all have our own constituencies to satisfy and our own concerns in a particular area," Engelund said, adding that he as much as anyone else had been guilty of overstepping the "fine line" between being a good board member and meddling.

But, he said, "We have a pattern developing."

By coincidence, his remarks came shortly after a threat from trustee James McFarlane over the district's program for autistic children. "If the administration doesn't want the board to get involved in administration they'd better provide a full school day for these kids," he said.

Val Vista unit views pipeline

PLEASANTON — The Val Vista Homeowners Association will sponsor a meeting to discuss the LAVWMA pipleine question at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Val Vista Recreation Building near Payne Road and Denker Drive.

A LAVWMA member will review the November ballot proposal and a discussion of its pro's and con's and a question period from the floor will follow. The meeting is free and open to the public.

Crisis line aides meet

PLEASANTON — A new class for Connection crisis line listeners begins Saturday.

Connection is a 24 - hour crisis intervention and informational phone line in Livermore, Pleasanton and Dublin. It is manned 24 hours a day, seven days a week by volunteers who go through a training program which helps develop their listening skills.

Any teen - ager or adult interested in finding out more about the project may call a Hotline staff member at 443-2123.

Area ranchers sign leases for East Bay Parks range

Local ranchers have just signed five - year grazing leases to continue using East Bay Regional Park District lands.

The ranchers are James Coelho, Livermore High agriculture teacher who will continue his long - time operation on Mission Peak Preserve (formerly the Starr property) just east of Fremont; George A. Walker and E.J. Mulqueeney, tenants for the past three years at Ridgelands Wilderness, formerly part of the Rowell ranch between Del Valle Park and Sunol Wilderness.

Expected annual income from the Ridgelands lease is $17,460 and on Mission Peak, $7,711, providing there is no repetition of the current drought which forced curtailment of grazing throughout East Bay cattle country.

"In inspecting the Ridgelands park with Mr. Walker and Mr. Mulqueeney, I found it to be in excellent condition for this worst growing season in years," said Harry Reeves, EBRPD resource analyst and grazing director.

Reeves added, "Nearby ranches on all sides now range from overgrazed to heavily grazed. None had the quantity of remaining forage of the Starr ranchlands."

He said of Walker and Mulqueeney, "Both men are recognized as highly reputable and qualified cattlemen."

As to the Coelho operation on Mission Peak, Reeves said he has been familiar with the management of this property since 1973 and the range conditions, fences, water systems and stock have been in excellent condition.

Reeves told the EBRPD board that the many ranchers who lease EBRPD lands throughout the two - county park district (Alameda and Contra Costa Counties) must be complimented in limiting grazing to avoid compounding damage to the drought - abused lands.

Dr. Howard L. Cogswell of Hayward, a science professor at Cal State, Hayward and a board member, said, "I flew over the whole area recently and some of the ranch lands are grazed right down to the ground. You can see the difference when you come to fences of the park boundaries."

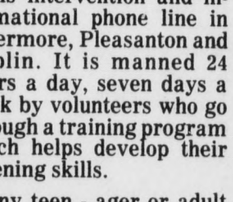

EBRPD makes some $126,000 a year from grazing on 22,000 acres in 12 parks or preserves, including Del Valle, Shadow Cliffs and Sunol Regional Wilderness.

Women to exercise

LIVERMORE — A special program of physical fitness for women which includes child supervision will begin Wednesday, Sept. 29.

Sponsored by the Livermore Area Recreation and Parks District, the program will enable mothers of pre - school children to enjoy jogging, volleyball, trampoline, softball and floor exercises while their children are cared for by qualified staff. Children will participate in indoor and outdoor supervised games and crafts.

The program is run on a drop - in basis at a cost of 50 cents per session. No signups are necessary. Sessions are Wednesday and Friday mornings from 9:30-11:30 at the Recreation Center, 8th and H streets, Livermore.

Pleasanton case solved

Young sleuth tracks down stolen guitar

The names have been changed to protect the innocent.

The witness: Amy, age 8.

The sleuth: Greg, age 9.

The artst: Kim, age 10.

The place: Fairlands School in the Pleasanton Meadows tract, Pleasanton.

Linda Halog's Spanish guitar has been stolen out of her locked car, parked in the Fairlands School lot while Linda was at an Early Childhood Education meeting.

A student at Cal State, Hayward, Linda brought the guitar to school to sing for her sister Tessie's third grade class. Linda is working toward a master's in counseling and spends as much time as she can working with children to get some experience.

It's a valuable guitar, the missing property. Linda bought it in Spain while studying in Madrid. Her professor knew the guitar maker, a craftsman with a shop at Calle Hortaleza No. 8.

Linda bought the top - of - the - line model, a nylon - string classical flamenco guitar with glossy golden finish.

Now the guitar is gone. It's not the value so much as the sentimental memories attached to the instrument. Student days in Madrid...a professional nightclub gig in northern Spain...dragging the guitar all over Europe, sneaking it into the cabins of planes so it won't be knocked around in the luggage compartment...treating the thing like a baby.

The Pleasanton police inspect Linda's '69 Valiant for signs of entry.

All they find is an open wing window. Linda remembers it was locked, but perhaps not firmly enough. Somebody must have pushed it open, pulled the door handle from the inside. They opened the guitar case and lifted out the instrument, then shut the car door and were gone.

The police don't have any clues. Linda doesn't know whom to suspect, but she doesn't think it's the children who go to Fairlands, as young as they are.

Despondent, she goes home and prints up 500 flyers, to be handed out at school on Friday morning.

PLEASE RETURN. NO QUESTIONS ASKED. CLASSICAL FLAMENCO GUITAR, MADE IN SPAIN.
ORANGE-TONED GLOSSY LACQUER FINISH. PLEASE CALL LINDA EXTREME SENTIMENTAL VALUE!!!

$30 REWARD.

Friday morning, and Greg is handed one of the flyers.

It has some big words in it, but there's a drawing of the guitar and it says "$30 Reward."

Greg goes to his teacher and promises, "I'll have that guitar for you by this afternoon." And takes the rest of the day off.

Greg is a sturdy little boy with a reputation for bending the school rules to suit himself. They call him "Junior Baretta," after the TV detective who goes outside the law in order to bring people to justice.

Greg spends the morning canvassing the neighborhood, knocking on doors, asking people about the stolen guitar.

Meanwhile, Amy, who's in third grade, hears about the theft. She remembers looking out her bedroom window after school and seeing a teen - aged boy take a guitar out of a car. She tells her teacher.

They call in Kim, a good artist at age 10. From Amy's description, Kim crayons a drawing of the suspect.

The teachers scratch their heads. How can anyone recognize this person from a kid's crayon drawing?

Greg reports back to school. Looks at the drawing. "Hey! I think I know him!"

After school, he hangs around the front of Fairlands until the high - school bus drops off its passengers there.

He spots his suspect. Instead of confronting him, or tipping off a teacher, Greg saunters over to another boy and says, "Did your friend steal a guitar yesterday?"

The older kid is taken aback. Then he looks at the little kid and figures it's some kind of hero worship. "Well, yeah, he did."

Greg trails his suspect home and rings the bell. He's going to confront the thief and see how far he gets.

No answer.

He stakes out the house for awhile.

Then, bored, he snoops around the backyard and spots the guitar out on the back porch. Grabs it and runs.

He sees a buddy cruising by on a 10 - speed. "Hey, quick! I need a ride to Fairlands School!" Boy and guitar pile onto the back of the bike for a fast ride.

A car suddenly screeches to a halt beside them. "Greg! Where've you been? I expected you to come right home after school!" It's the babysitter. And she is really upset.

Especially when she sees the guitar. She's heard about the stolen instrument and of course she figures Greg took it.

"You're coming with ME, young man!"

She hauls Greg down to the Fairlands School office, where he gets a hero's welcome. With the eyewitness report immediately clearing him, he is promised half of the $15 reward, the other half going to Amy, who had spotted the thief first.

What a relief to Pleasanton police officer Mark Redeker, an old school friend of Linda's who had taken a personal interest in the case. Redeker had cruised the Fairlands neighborhood four times trying to pick up clues.

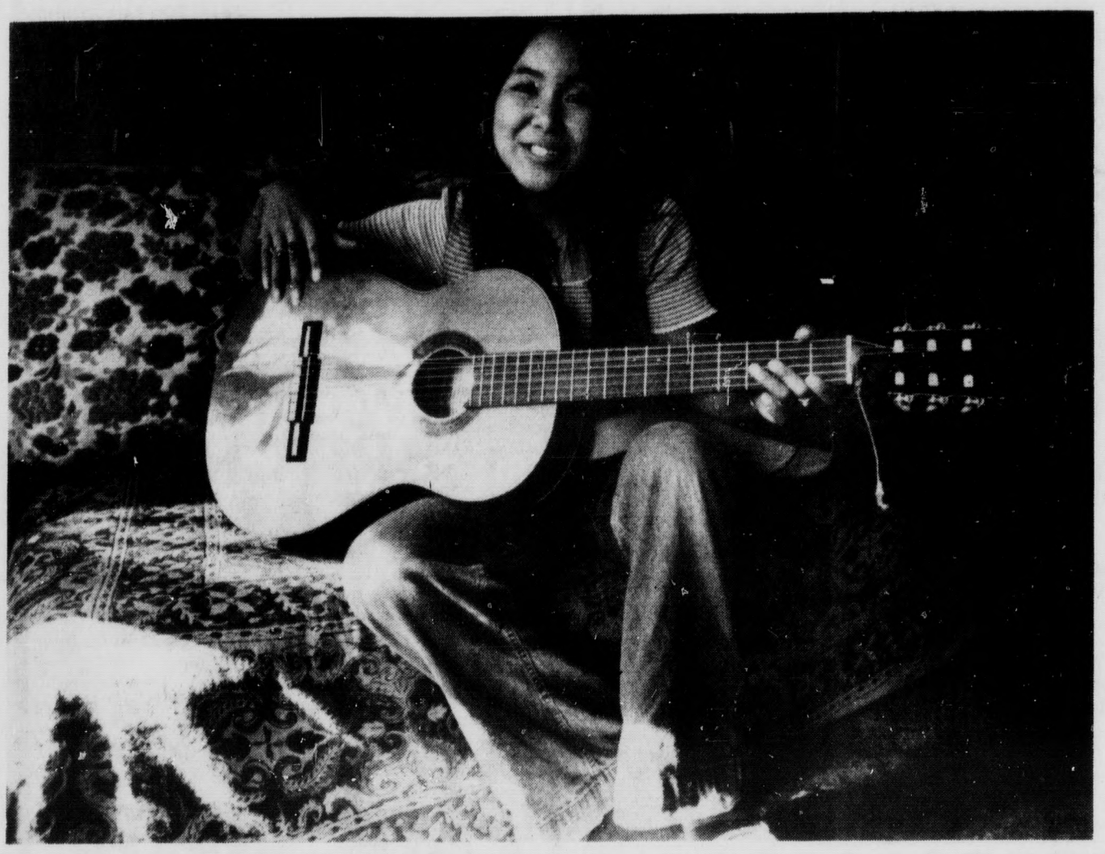

It's also a relief to the Pleasanton detectives, who long suspected the 16 - year - old thief of a string of robberies in the Pleasanton Meadows area and now have enough evidence to nail him.

Rejoicing along with Linda are the whole school staff, who took an intense interest in the 24 - hour mystery.

As for the sleuth, the witness and the artist — they never knew each other before the incident and they will probably never team up again.

Unless another mystery strikes the town of Pleasanton...

— by Pat Kennedy

County backs hotline hub, approves $45,000 funding

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — A $45,000 federal grant apportioned this week by county supervisors will open a Hotline Youth Service Center in Dublin.

The board unanimously approved the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) funding that will add two full-time staff counselors and allow for expansion to serve the unincorporated areas of the county.

The nearly four-year-old program sponsored by the Livermore Police Department currently serves the west valley with two days of counseling in Pleasanton. The Pleasanton service will continue, said Livermore Capt. Jack Essex.

The grant was to cover a full year, but administrative delays mean the funding will be used for only nine months.

"It's kind of a boon to us and will allow us to buy equipment to operate a Dublin office since we're now responsible for the unincorporated areas," said Essex. "It's our aim to get any kid within biking or walking distance of the program."

Essentially a diversionary program, Horizons primarily handles "status offenders," youths who commit crimes that are only crimes for juveniles — curfew, truancy and run aways. But it also covers regular crime like petty theft and joyriding.

The program is used to keep youths out of the court and juvenile justice systems.

Livermore and Pleasanton each contribute $20,000 per year to its operation.

Leader

Terri Piper of Pleasanton will become the 118th worthy advisor for the Pleasanton Rainbow Girls in ceremonies Saturday at 7 p.m. at Pleasanton Elementary School. Other officers to be installed are Diane Seed, Diane Look, Denise Knauer and Sheri Snyder.

Twin Valley 'Y' sets registration

Twin Valley YMCA has set orientation and registration nights for its Y-Indian Guide and Princess programs at schools throughout the valley between Sept. 27 and Oct. 6.

The Y-Indian Guide program is for fathers and their sons in first, second or third grades; Y-Indian Princess, for fathers and their daughters in primary grades. Trail Blazers is for fathers and sons in grades four, five and six.

The three programs are designed to foster a closer and more understanding relationship between fathers and their children by providing activities For fun, learning, companionship and character development. Registration and orientation nights are scheduled at the following schools.

Sonoma Avenue School in Livermore — Sept. 27; Pleasanton Elementary School — Sept. 28; Jackson Avenue School in Livermore — Sept. 29; Frederiksen School in Dublin — Sept. 30; Lydiksen School in Pleasanton — Oct. 5; Dublin Elementary School — Oct. 6.

In addition, Y-Trail Blazers will be registered at Jackson Avenue School in Livermore — Sept. 29; Frederiksen School in Dublin — Sept. 30; and Lydiksen School in Pleasanton — Oct. 5.

For more information on YMCA programs call 462-2211, Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Livermore's low income seniors to receive more home services

LIVERMORE — To aid low - income seniors in Livermore who are over 60 and require help at home, Senior Service Center Director Lillian Snorf has decided to hire a number of local workers who have experience in that field.

Persons who have had some training in nurses' aide work, and who can provide several hours a week for personal care and light housekeeping work, will be paid $3 per hour with no social security payments taken out.

The homemaker service is operated by Comprehensive Health Care Services in Oakland, a private licensed home health agency providing a wide range of help for the elderly through screened, bonded and supervised staff.

The Alameda County Commission on Aging has provided for 27,000 units of homemaker service to elderly residents through Title OOO funds through the Comprehensive Health Care Services.

No holiday or weekend work will be required of those hired for the job. Workers will make hour - long visits to elderly shut - ins to help with bathing, grooming and dressing, grocery shopping, simple meal preparation and other services so necessary to seniors who do not qualify for the homemaker or chore service grants from the county.

There is no age limit, but workers should have their own transportation.

Applications and interviews are being handled by Mrs. Simkins of the Comprehensive Health Care Services on Tuesday afternoons at 3017 Summit St., Oakland. Further information is available from Mrs. Snorf at the Senior Service Center, 443 - 1150.

Pleasanton School PTA sets craft fair, flea mart

PLEASANTON— A craft fair and flea market is scheduled for Pleasanton School on Saturday, Oct. 2.

Local artists and craftsmen interested in selling their wares are invited to reserve a space. It will be an opportunity for valley residents to get rid of those "white elephants" you found the last time the attic or garage was cleaned.

The fair is being sponsored by the Pleasanton School PTA. Those wishing to reserve booth space should call Nancy Rensink, 846-5023, onn Pearson, 846-3736.

Booths may be reserved for $5.

Paying our way to get there

Our grandparents, or perhaps our great - grandparents, would tell us of that era in America when "we pretty much did for ourselves ... and that included building roads, followed by the water wagon every day or so to lay down the dust."

There came that time when "good old Uncle Sam" took over this and that duty ... including the building of highways, underwriting signalized crossings, planning interchanges ... just about anything a motoring American could desire. The fact that Uncle's funds came from a healthy dose of taxes bothered us not at all. At least not then.

In the post - Eisenhower era we learned, with shock, that it might not be possible for Washington to do all things for all people. Even that promised "billion dollar network of freeways from coast to coast" might not be realized. Closer to home, governors and legislators learned that the paltry 12.5 percent "state proportion" of new freeway money might be more than the state could afford.

And so it was urban centers began to realize that — in order to get from here to there — local government and local taxpayers might have to come up with a healthy share of new construction funds. Livermore ventured into this new ground with its great Downtown Underpass venture. Some of the localites are still in shock.

Pleasanton discovered a basic matter of getting over, or onto, a new freeway, might turn out to be "a local responsiblity." The localites still can't believe that one.

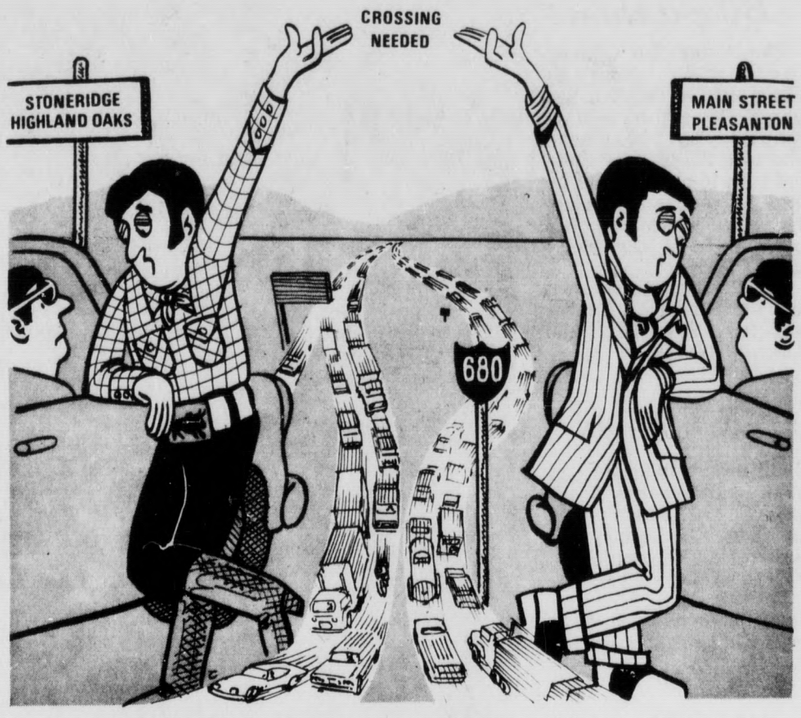

Looking back on all those bum freeways ... the ones that arbitrarily sliced through a city park, cut the downtown area in two, or roared close by the school ... it might be good to transfer some of that responsibility from the feds to the local scene.

Is Isabel Avenue a worthy north - south route? Let the City of Livermore join with Alameda County in making that decision, sharing in the design, and the cost.

How best does Pleasanton get over that I - 680 barrier? Local property owners might not welcome that tax burden, but at least "doing it ourselves" will meet the most immediate community need, at the smallest possible cost. Besides, we would have paid for the much bigger Federal project anyway, eventually.

From San Ramon to Sunol, Dublin Canyon to Altamont, we are a Valley fraught with heavy traffic. Those freeways are not going to disappear. Our best bet is to make the freeways work for us, design the overpasses, control the interchanges. That is not an easy route, but right now it is the only one available.

In the long run, it might be the best thing that ever happened to Home Rule ... building roads to best compliment the local scene.

'I know it sounds silly, but. . ."

Teens downtown

The meeting involving Pleasanton merchants and city officials about downtown littering, vandalism and congestion associated with young peoples activities on Main Street was a first step toward solving the excesses. The attitude by merchants was that youths can associate on Main Street all they want, as long as they respect everyone else's rights, and that's as it should be.

There is precious little to do for young people here, especially in meeting other young people, so cruising probably will be around for awhile until the next big fad. Most of Pleasanton's youths have been responsible people in the past and much of the problem probably is coming from outside.

Strict enforcement of the laws against teen drinking should curb the litter and other problems associated with drinking that have plagued Main Street merchants. The police already have started enforcing these laws vigorously.

It would be well if the local police could imitate Livermore's action of installing foot patrols on Main Street. It's true that the local staff is underpowered, but Livermore faced a similar problem and solved it by juggling around the work shifts. Perhaps motorcycle patrol would help, too.

As far as noontime problems are concerned, a strong educational program at the high school might help. Otherwise the school ought to go to a closed campus. Learning how to brown bag it might be good training for their future roles in the work force in these days of lowered expectations.

A good reminder

A man's castle could turn into a nightmarish maze when fire strikes if there is no pre-arranged escape plan.

Fifty-seven per cent of the 11,600 fire deaths in 1974 occurred in the home, according to the latest estimates released by the National Fire Protection Association. And most of these deaths occurred between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

It is important to have a well-rehearsed family escape plan to avoid panic and confusion in the event of a fire. Even a person's own home may appear foreign in an emergency situation at night if the usual exit is blocked.

Fire Protection Week, proclaimed annually by the President of the United States, will be observed this year October 3-9 to remind citizens of the ever-present danger of fire. This is a good reminder for families to avoid disaster by advance planning.

The teacher

(The following is an opinion presented by the Murray Teachers Association)

Teachers Give More Than You See

Parents are responsible for the guidance and education of their children. Historically, however, parents have surrendered part of these responsibilities to teachers. We teachers realize the weight of these responsibilities and are dedicated to fulfilling them to the best of our abilities.

Teachers are professionals. They give of themselves beyond the "normal" work day; they do it for the love and benefit of the children they teach. MTA would like to share with you some of a teacher's "hidden" tasks.

A teacher is mother, father, counselor, disciplinarian, and friend to his or her students.

A teacher sometimes gives up his or her lunch hour, their preparation period (for seventh-eighth grade), and breaks to be with students who need help. Indeed, a teacher is available, both before and after school, to meet the emotional and educational needs of students.

Teachers spend portions of their own salary to buy educational materials for their students.

Teachers spend hours of their own time making educational materials to use specifically with their students.

Teacher continously attend classes (paid for out of their own pockets) to improve their teaching.

Teachers meet regularly after school hours with each other to develop, plan and coordinate educational programs for the students they teach.

Teachers don't leave work when they leave school. They correct papers at home, they plan and prepare lessons at home, and they contact parents from home— often at the expense of their own family life!

Teachers give more than you see.

Editor, The Times:

The "Grassroots Movement" for Valerie Raymond is a going and growing concern. I am absolutely thrilled by the co-operation that I have received thus far from everyone who is working to elect Valerie Raymond to the Alameda County Board of Supervisors. Every detail is important. Even more portant, however, is the cheerfulness and alacrity with which every campaign worker has executed those details. I see many new, eager people who have turned out especially for this campaign but we need more of you. Please call me at 443-4713.

Together, we'll put Valerie Raymond into office and John Murphy out to pasture!

The miracle

Editor, The Times:

It is now one year since the accident which so seriously injured my wife, Veronica, and our son, John. It is very difficult to look back and think about all that has happened since that day maybe someday it can be put behind us — but it certainly will never be forgotten!

Thanks to Drs. Larmore, Gross and Elia, as well as the entire staff of Valley Memorial Hospital, John has made an excellent recovery. Through the efforts of the Sisters of St. Michael's School he was able to keep up with his lessons at home until he was able to return to school in January.

The three months we waited for Veronica to rouse from her coma were almost unbearable. The help of our parents and the rest of our families, our neighbors, friends, and even total strangers sustained our whole family during that time, and since. Their support kept us going.

At the present time, Veronica is making a great deal of progress in her recovery. It is a very slow process, and requires a lot of effort on her part — but she won't be stopped! She's going to recover! She won't settle for less.

Our other children, Bill, Bob and Valerie have also done their part to help during this really difficult time. By helping at home, and by just generally behaving responsibly, they have helped their Mother and me immensely.

There really isn't any way I can thank everyone who has helped us so much this past year. The neighbors who so generously prepared so many delicious meals for us, and watched out for our children as closely as if they were their own; all the others who brought in food; the individuals and organizations — many unknown to us — who have made so many generous donations for our benefit; the hosts of people from all over the world who offered their prayersfor us; my Co-workers at Sears who sponsored the dance benefit for Veronica; the Knights of Columbus who so ably assisted; — to all of these, and to everyone else who has given us their help — we just want to say Thanks. We couldn't have come this far without all of you.

We prayed for a miracle — and we got it!

round the town

I really believe Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter are missing a bet.

I mean those debates. Granted, the direction of our nation's economy, inflation, unemployment and that sort of thing are of interest to some Americans. But with a ready - made subject at hand that is of interest to ALL Americans, I don't see how these two candidates could pass it up.

Jimmy should have been tipped off with the response to that Playboy Magazine interview ... the one where the Georgia boy "told all." I am informed his mail since those disclosures has been positively staggering.

"Nothing, but NOTHING has so stirred up the voters like this Playboy interview," I was informed by a Carter Campaign worker who chose to remain annonymous. That worker, who I shall call "Prudance," was in the process of quitting the Carter team to handle the Chilean president's next revolution.

"A little more predictable," Prudance explained, prudently.

Given that kind of response to just one interview, it seems to me that Jimmy Carter has found the spark to enliven an otherwise dullish presidential race. The early Nielsen Ratings on last night's first Great Debate were, quite frankly, disappointing. A 1957 movie showing Orphan Annie taking her first bath on screen, and on Channel 44, pulled a higher percentage of Bay Area viewers during that same hour.

In the national interest, I confronted the League of Women Voters with this problem.

How can you justify the present format for those Great Debates, I asked the League's Great Debate Coordinator, when the nation's viewers are obviously more interested in a 1957 view of Orphan Annie taking a bath? "The League is a non - partisan, nonsectarian organization dedicated to an enlightened populace," the Coordinator informed me. "I see no connection between the presidential candidates and Orphan Annie taking a bath."

But that's just the point, I argued. The people don't associate with presidential candidates in the bath tub because the voters believe presidential candidates never take a bath! We are so conditioned to view our presidents as men - beyond - the - ordinary, that they are above such things as taking a bath.

"I fail to see the importance of all this to the nation's electoral process," she admonished me.

What's important, I argued, is that Americans want to believe their presidential candidates are human. When Jimmy Carter admitted to Playboy Magazine that he occasionally had bad thoughts, every man, woman and child in this country who ever had a bad thought immediately identified with him! Doesn't that tell you something?

"It tells me," Ms. Coordinator said, cooly, " that there are more dirty minds in this country than I care to admit."

I could see that I was getting nowhere with Ms. Coordinator, so I hurried down the street to the Ford Campaign Headquarters. There I encountered Phyllis Phonetic, the president's chief speech writer.

"I fail to see what Orphan Annie taking a bath on Channel 44 has to do with Mr. Ford and that awful Carter man debating on Channels 4, 5, 7 and 2. I think you'd agree that our exposure was much better than Annie's."

Well now, I had to disagree with Phyllis Phonetic. Even given the great billows of Ivory Suds (99 percent pure) that covered most of Annie in that tub, I still felt that her exposure was a trifle more exciting than what we viewers could see of the two presidential candidates.

One gets the impression, I advised Phyllis Phonetic, that there isn't any real substance in either of the candidates.

"Why, how can you say such a thing!" Phyllis demanded. "Did you read Mr. Ford's last three speeches which he read to the primary grades at Select Elementary School? There certainly was plenty of substance there."

Yes, I agreed, particularly where the president promised "a free ice cream cone in every lunch basket."

My next stop was the California Headquarters for Jimmy Carter, located, as you know, just between the First Baptist Church and the Sinbad Topless Club, on Union Street.

It was there, by great good fortune, that I encountered Mrs. Jimmy Carter! I recognized her by her warm Southern charm, and by the "Jimmy Carter for President" button she was wearing, upside down.

"Mistah Cahta does not wish to be interviewed," she informed me, firmly. "Mistah Cahta is busy right now, having his mouth washed out with soap, and sending his brain on retreat."

Does this mean that Jimmy Carter won't be available to continue the Great Debates?

"Only if he clears his copy fust with me, and with Orphan Annie," I was informed.

EARL WATERS

Carter Goofed

It appears Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter has been getting the wrong advice. At least his endorsement of the Cesar Chavez farm labor initiative would indicate he is listening to the wrong people in his quest for California votes. He couldn't have gotten into a worse controversy. He will gain nothing and lose much.

Designated as Prop 14 on the November ballot, the measure would create a new Farm Labor Relations Board. But there already is such a board, created only last year with the strong backing of Governor Jerry Brown and the full blessings of Chavez. The controversy in which it has wallowed ever since stems from the renege by Brown on his pledge not to appoint partisans as members of the board. When the Legislature blew the whistle on Brown's attempt to stack the board with all pro-farm labor members, both Brown and Chavez got into a huff. Chavez put his people to circulating an initiative and won Brown's support for it by backing his play for the Presidential nomination. Now, obviously Brown has conned Carter into endorsing it.

It was a foolish move by Carter. If he gets himself involved in local issues, having no bearing on national problems, in every state he can end up like Thomas Dewey in 1948. It was a needless thing. He should have heeded Speaker Leo McCarthy's advice and stated that California already has a farm labor law intact and fully funded and flexible to change. Give it a chance to work.

What Carter obviously failed to understand is that not many of Chavez' workers vote. All of the farmers do. Chavez and his followers have no place to go except support Carter. The farmers, many of them Democrats not entirely happy with the present Republican administration, do have an option. They aren't nearly as stirred up against Ford as they are against Chavez.

Farm labor has been an issue of long standing in California and a particularly stormy one for more than a decade. Every politician outside of the rural areas who has run in statewide elections has been bruised siding with Chavez.

Legislators from the rural districts have felt the sting. But they know which side to take and it isn't Chavez's. Witness Congressman B.F. Sisk's quick withdrawal from the Carter Campaign following his faux pas. Representing the state's largest agricultural county of Fresno he saw Carter's endorsement of Prop 14 as a kiss of death for any rural legislators on Carter's bandwagon. If Sisk, who has been elected term after term since 1954, ran scared from Carter, what will be the effect on other farm area legislators backing Carter who are not nearly as well entrenced as Sisk? Most of them already have declared their opposition to Prop 14 and may find themselves compelled to renounce Carter as well.

Neither does an endorsement of the Chavez measure mean currying favor with organized labor. For, which the proposal has been backed by State AFL-CIO President John Henning it doesn't follow that the sentiment extends through the ranks. The Teamsters have been in fight with Chavez for years. And the State Building Trades Council appears to be headed for neutral ground.

As for the rest of the Californians, those in the urban areas where most of the voters reside, they neither understand nor are concerned with the issue. The odds at the moment is that Prop 14 will go down in humiliating defeat. How will that help Carter?

Perhaps Carter feels he can gamble California to gain votes in other states where Chavez has rallied farm workers. Maybe he thinks he is so far ahead it doesn't matter. He should look back in history to 1916. That year Republican Charles Evans Hughes went to bed thinking he had defeated President Woodrow Wilson. He awakened the next morning to learn that California had handed the election to Wilson.

Holmdahl's pets

Editor, The Times:

I have read with interest and amusement your "Round the Town" article about passage of SB 1115. (Which we called "The Bill of Rights for Dogs." — Ed.)

While the article does not purport to state what the bill does or to describe the rather common abuses with which it deals, I truly enjoyed your humor.

For balance, however, I wish you had had enough space somewhere to report accurately what the bill does do. And, for that matter, perhaps your readers would have been somewhat interested in the content of the twenty or so other press releases sent to you this year — if you had had space to publish part of one or more of them.

I am pleased that both you and I are making progress!

John W. Holmdahl
State Senator, 8th District

(Senator Holmdahl had the good grace to deliver his letter "in person" and to then stay for a 90 — minute visit ... his first in this newspaper office. We agreed more such visits would be mutually beneficial and hope soon to have the senator speak to a larger assembly of local citizens. — Editor)

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The unlucky expert had caught us again. With no escape, we agreed to listen to the sad story of one hand.

Here is his tale of woe. "This hand cost me top score last night. The field was in the same four-spade contract I was with one exception. Everyone else made it. I was down one."

"You didn't call for dummy's king of diamonds at trick one, did you?" we asked.

"No, I called for the deuce, but old Jonesy, who sat East, played his ace anyway. If I had called for the king I would have been OK anyway. Jones had a card out to lead back and suddenly asked what the king was still doing in dummy. Then he put that card back and placed the queen of hearts on the table. Three quick heart tricks cooked my goose."

The hand is rather interesting in that some good player in the East seat might deliberately play the ace of diamonds at trick one. The theory being that South would have played dummy's king, if he held two diamonds. A trifle far-fetched, but experts do all sorts of unusual things and sometimes they work.

Ask the Jacobys

A Rhode Island reader writes:

"The bidding has gone one spade — two spades — four spades. What do you lead from with ♠ x x x ♥ Q 10 x x ♦ K x x ♣ K x x?

Our first choice is a low trump. Our second choice the fourth-best heart. Neither of these leads may be right, but if you always made the right lead you would never lose.

Carpet center enlarged

Carpets 'N Colors has just opened a new addition to its Dublin store, located at 7232 Regonal St., and is now a complete home decorating center. It features brand name carpeting, Armstrong floor fashion linoleum, custom draperies, designer wallpaper, woven woods and decorator shades, in addition to the complete line of Eureka vacuum cleaners. After a second store was added in Livermore, at 1776 First St., and the Regional Street building was purchased early this year to double that store's size, Carpets 'N Colors is now the Valley's fastest growing home decorating center.

Pleasanton woman advances

Martha Cummings Kern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Cummings, 461 Ewing Drive in Pleasanton, has been appointed an editorial assistant at Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital in Philadelphia, Pa., it was recently announced.

In this capacity, Ms. Kern will be involved in researching, writing and distributing information about the center city medical complex to newspapers, magazines, TV and radio, as well as in the production of various Hahnemann publications.

She has worked in college public relations as a writer for the news bureau at Brigham Young Universty, Provo, Utah. She was graduated from BYU summa cum laude in April.

A member of Sigma Delta Chi (Society for Professional Journalists), she received a Mark of Excellence Award from that organization in editorial writing this year.

A native of Hayward, she now resides in Philadelphia with her husband Karl, a first - year medical student at the Hahnemann Medical College.

Special home showing at Val Vista begins tomorrow

PLEASANTON — Val Vista model homes will be offered for sale at a special showing this weeken, according to Dennis Cheney, vice president and general manager of Singer Housing Company's Central Division.

The model homes are priced from $52,950. These three and four bedroom homes are bpautifully landscaped, and purchase shall include all present floor coverings, built-ins, wallpaper, draperies, prsent fencing, sprinkler system and more. Singer will also give the buyer a one-year warranty for all mechanical items pertinent to the home itself.

Commenting on offspring these model homes for sale, Cheny noted that "this is the culmination of one of Singer Housing Company's most successful projects. Buyers of these models will not only make an excellent financial transaction for themselves, but they'll be spared installation of the sprinklers, landscaping, fencing and the myriad of details involved in floor coverings, draperies and wallpaper."

Cheny went on to point out that the buyer of each home will be permitted to purchase, prior to public sale, furniture items within his or her own unit after furniture prices have been set."

Cheny attributes much of Val Vista's success to its convenient Pleasanton location, moderate price range and quality construction. Val Vista is set against the Sunol Ridge in the Amdador Valley. It offers a natural, country atmosphere, where residents can enjoy the nearby recreational facilities and the great climate.

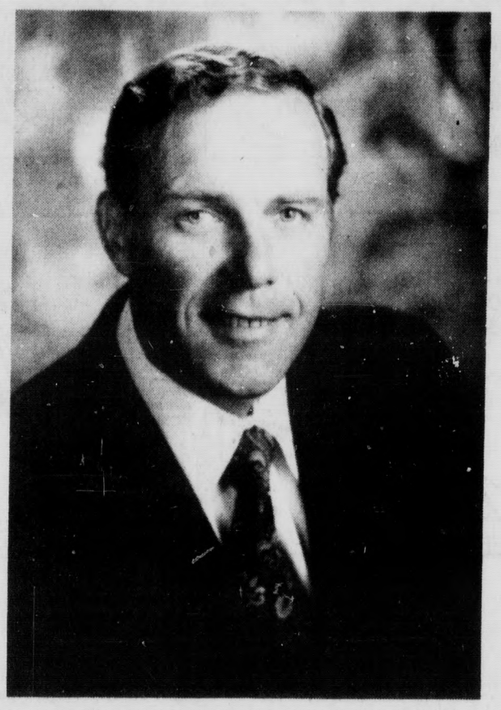

"While a quiet, suburban environment pervades the community, homeowners won't be giving up any city conveniences, since Val Vista is almost equidistant from San Francisco, Oakland and the Peninsula, with all their major employment and urban amenities," Cheny said.

Valley Val Vista is located off Hopyard Road, near Inglewood Way in Pleasanton.

Cards pick over SJS

SAN JOSE —The year was 1975. The place, Stanford Stadium, Palo Alto, California. With less than two minutes remaining 5-11 junior plac kicker Lou Rodriguez trotted unto the fild.

He swung his powerful right leg, sending a 34-yard field goal over the cross-bar to give the San Jose State Spartans a 36-34 upset win over the Stanford Cardinals.

The same teams tangle tomorrow but Stanford should be ready this time. At least, according to the folks that gaze into crystal balls and bank accounts at Tahoe and Reno.

Stanford's favored? Yes, despite the Cardinals' two opening defebts including a one-sided loss to Michigan last week.

Prehaps the bookies know something SJSU's faithful don't. Like the possible absence of senior flash Rick Kane.

Kane, averaging 7.1 yards per carry this year, limped noticably at practice Thursday.

"I pulled a muscle before the Fullerton game," the former Amador Valley High School athlete said, rubbing his right leg. "If it hurts Saturday likes it does today, I doubt if I'll play."

The Spartan defense has been just as superb. Led by linemen Fred Ford and Wilson Faumuina, SJ is seventh nationally in scoring defense while allowing only 2.1 yards a run.

Rayford Roberson, former Dublin High standout, is second only to Ford in total tackles. Rayford said of tomorrow's contest against Stanford, "It's going to be a battle. That's for sure.

Corallo's win sparks Mats

There's nothing like a win to give a tennis player confidence so Greg Corallo of Granada High School should be feeling better today.

Corallo defeated Dar in Plott of Amador Valley, 6-2, 6-2 yesterday to help the Matadors take a 5-2 decision over the Dons on the winners' courts in East Bay Athletic League action.

"Greg's been on a little losing streak lately so this win should help his confidence out a lot," said Matador coach Lee Williford after the match. "He was concentrating better and played consistently well today."

Corallo's win was important as it tied the score at 2-2. Murray Dean won the final singles match for Granada with a 6-3, 6-1 decision over David Lifke.

Granada won both doubles matches in two sets. Paul Hurdlow and Chris Watchmaker defeated Travis Lee and Brian Calkins, 6-2, 6-2 in the first match. Tony Delgado and Bill Rodgers came back in the second match to topple Mike Rennels and Bill Rodgers, 6-3, 6-2.

The victory gives Granada a 3-1 mark in EBAL action. It was also the first time the Matadors had ever beaten the Dons.

Williford praised his doubles team.

"Our first team (Hurdlow and Watchmaker) are as good as any in the league. Our second team is undefeated and really improving fast."

In other EBAL action yesterday Foothill downed California 5-2, Livermore dumped Dublin 6-1 and undefeated Monte Vista toppled San Ramon, 7-0.

Foothill evened its record at 2-2 with its win over California. The Falcons won four of the five singles matches and split the doubles competition.

Times SPORTS
Dave Weber, Editor

Bob Cannon got Foothill off to a fast start with a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Mike Daugherty in the top seeded match. Larry Walters evened the score at 1-1 with a 7-5, 4-6, 6-3 win over Jim Silk of Foothill.

Dons, Falcons seek offensive strength

Foothill and Amador Valley, two teams which have had offense problems in pre-season high school football action, hope their luck turns better tonight.

Amador Valley hosts Menlo Atherton and Foothill travels to Newark to play Memorial. In other games involving East Bay Athletic League teams tonight Granada is at Liberty, Livermore travels to Manteca, Dublin hosts Acalanes, San Ramon visits Alhambra and Monte Vista hosts Menlo School. California plays Miramonte at Monte Vista tomorrow night.

Although both Foothill and Amador Valley have had their share of offense problems this season, there are different reasons for their setbacks.

Foothill coach John Lupoi has been using pre - determined plays in his offense rather than situation plays. Amador has been wrecked with injuries including star running back Mike Goodison's bad ankle. Goodison is not expected to play tonight.

"We've used pre - determined plays rather than situation plays in our offense to help get our kids ready for the league season," Lupoi admitted.

"Don't get me wrong, I'd love to score," he went on. "But the main thing is to get the kids ready for the league opener. If we had a running back who could go for 150-200 yards per game we might gear our offense as to how we could get the ball to him. We don't have that type of back so we try and get our players to improve as a whole. I've been really pleased with the progress we've made. We gained over 300 yards against Vanden and over 200 against Northgate despite losing both games. Against Memorial we'll use situation plays for the first time."

Palmer eyes starter's berth

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco State University football coach Vic Rowen is doubly glad this week that he caught up with Rich Palmer last spring.

"We chased him real hard," Rowen admitted, recalling the recruitment of the former Livermore High School and Alameda County All-Star quarterback.

"We knew he was a veer quarterback, and we were trying to run the veer," he added.

Palmer may take charge of that offense a bit sooner that either he or Rowen might have imagined. Injuries to front-line quarterbacks Jim Jarvis and Tom DeRago opened the starter's spot during last week's loss to Oregon Tech.

Palmer stepped in to complete three of eight passes, including a 27-yard scoring strike to his self-styled "press agent," wide receiver Frank Crosby.

But that performance doesn't gaurantee Palmer the job this week at Cal-Poly in Pomona.

Senior Tony Simpson, from Sacramento, holds a slight edge, according to Rowen, on the basis of experience.

"The other kid (Simpson) is ahead of Rich since he was here last year," Rowen explained. "It will depend on who runs the option better."

Rowen praised Palmer for his work last weekend.

"He did well, considering we had to throw him into the breech," the long-time Gator coach said.

His hair much longer than in his Cowboy days, Palmer agrees that he still has a ways to go.

"I still need a lot of work on technique," he said, adding that he sees two major differences between high school and college ball.

"They hit a whole lot harder up here," he laughed, also pointing to a better grade of receiver.

"They're one hell of a lot better," he said. "You can depend on them being where they're supposed to be."

But Rowen is not currently convinced that Palmer is able to connect with those receivers as profitably as possible. He did say:

"Once his passing comes around, he'll be a very fine player for us. He's the kind of freshman we like to have — if Livermore has anyone else like that kid, we'll take him."

Rowen certainly has an edge in recruiting Cowboy players, since Livermore athletic director — and former football coach Tom Davis played for S.F. State under Rowen.

So, it's probably no coincidence that Rowen says of Palmer, "He was obviously well-coached in the veer during high school."

Rowen is also aware of Palmer's abilities as a baseball outfielder and said, "Rich could become one of the few people to letter or four years in two different sports at State."

With his sense of purpose, Palmer just might.

After Wednesday's practice session, injured signal-caller Jarivs jived Palmer, saying, "Hey, Rich, we're gonna have to set up a little party for you Friday night, just to get you loose for the game."

"Not this boy," Palmer replied, keeping his eyes on the starting job.

Miller leads Kaiser Open

NAPA, Calif. — With his parents looking on from the front lawn of his home, Johnny Miller scored a hole-in-one and strolled to a course-record, nine-under-par 63 and the first - round lead Thursday in the $175,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament.

Miller, who has won this tournament the last two years, started from the 10th tee on the North Course of the Silverado Country Club and scored his ace with a four-iron shot on the 182-yard 11th hole.

Miller's home is located between the 10th green and the 11th tee, and his parents were watching when he made his second hole-in-one in the last three years in this tournament.

His 63 broke the record of 64 on the North Course, which at 6,849 yards is considered the tougher of the two layouts used for the first two rounds of this event. The players shift courses Friday, with Miller playing the 6,602-yard South Course. The North Course will be used for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

"That hole-in-one lifted me right off my feet," said Miller, who won the Tucson Open, the Bob Hope Classic and the British Open earlier in the year.

Tim Rego may be only five years old but he already packs a mighty kick on the soccer field.

Tim scored three times to lead the Chiggers to a 3-0 victory over the Atom Ants in Livermore Soccer Club Under-8 action last weekend.

Torrez stops Royals

KANSAS CITY — Mike Torrez hurled a five-hitter as the Oakland A's routed Kansas City 8-1 Thursday night and climbed to within five games of the Royals in the American League West race.

The Royals' magic number for clinching the AL West remained at five games. The A's and Royals have nine games left in the regular season, three of those against each other next week in Oakland.

The Right Reverend Richard Millard, of the Episcopal Diocese of California will dedicate the St. Clare land on Sunday.

St. Clare dedicates church site

PLEASANTON — The Right Reverend Richard Millard of the Episcopal Diocese of California will be in Pleasanton on Sunday, Sept. 26 to dedicate the recently acquired land of St. Clare Episcopal Church.

The land is 3.1 acres on the Northwest corner of Hopyard Road and Valley Trails Drive. The lot was chosen by the Diocese to be mutually convenient to Dublin and Pleasanton residents.

Plans for building on the site are still in a formative stage. St. Clare's congregation is meeting at 339 Rose Ave. in the old St. Augustine's Parish Hall. The Vicar, (The Rev. William A. Smith), the Deputy Vicar, The Rev. Susan Bergmans) and the Senior Warden, (Ralph Calabrese) invite anyone who might be interested to attend this unique outdoor service.

BART tightens purse strings on directors' expense claims

Lesher News Bureau

OAKLAND — Further revisions to expense accounting procedures have been made by Bay Area Rapid Transit directors.

The BART board Thursday approved tightening expense accounting but, with three members dissenting, agreed that directors should be allowed $100 per month each to spend for secretary and clerical help, plus telephone answering and paging services.

Director Ella Hutch of San Francisco pressed for the changes which had been recommended for board approval by the district administration committee which she chairs.

Hutch said she wanted to "silence this issue" of directors' expenses which she said has been plaguing the board for nearly a year.

Board members, particularly president Elmer Cooper and Richard Clark, were criticized for expenditures by the Alameda and Contra Costa county grand juries.

Most of the revisions were minor but represented a compromise Hutch hoped would end a "vindictive, punitive vendetta against certain directors."

After the compromise revisions were approved, Clark of Oakland asked that board members be allowed $100 per month for personal office expenses.

That brought an immediate objection from Director Nello Bianco of Richmond who contended that any clerical or telephone answering services are available at BART's main headquarters.

Hutch, angered, declared, "I am really incensed about my integrity and honesty being questioned by the great moralists on the board."

She also noted that she has declined to attend transit conventions in Florida where her family lives for fear of being accused of making a family-business trip at BART expense.

When it came to a vote, only Bianco and directors Robert Allen and John Glenn opposed allowing the $1,200 per year per director for office expenses.

An effort by Bianco to have the board of directors approve all expenses of directors each month also failed with Bianco, Allen and Glenn as the lone dissenters.

Bianco contended that state legislators who backed the BART half-cent sales tax bill now waiting for Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s signature wouldn't have supported the measure had they known BART directors would refuse to put strict controls on expenses.

He further claimed that the state would eventually impose the requirement on the transit district.

Cooper dismissed the request as being "ridiculous."

Flu shot Sundays set at 37 sites

Health officials are hoping for long lines on two "Swine Flu Sundays" scheduled for next month at 37 sites throughout the county.

"Immunizations before exposure to the disease are the only way individuals can protect themselves," according to program director Gloria Taylor.

National health officials fear another "pandemic" — world wide epidemic — of the fatal virus. An estimated 20 million people died in the two year flu rage that ravaged after World War I.

Swine flu, which normally is not transmitted among people, was discovered among recruits at Ft. Dix, New Jersey earlier this year.

The vaccine is made from the dead virus and will not cause the disease, according to officials.

"Swine Flu Sundays" will be held from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 24 and 31 at the Alameda County Fairgrounds in Pleasanton in addition to other locations around the county.

Innoculations will be either with the monovalent vaccine for protection against the Swine Swine Flu only, or with a bivalent vaccine to ward off both Swine Flu and the A/Victoria strain which circulated last year.

The bivalent vaccine will be given to those over 65 and those with serious long-term conditions like heart or lung diseases or diabetes.

In addition to Swine Flu Sunday, shots will be available from the county health agency through November at its regular immunization clinics. Dates and times are yet to be announced.

Mobile teams for senior citizens and for industries with 100 or more employes also will be organized.

After its arrival next month, the federally supplied vaccine will be available to private physicians, hospitals, health plans, convalescent hospitals and industries with medical departments. There is no vaccine currently available, however.

Taylor said volunteers, both individuals and organizations, still are needed to help with the massive program. Doctors and nurses are needed to give the shots, while civilians may provide clerical assistance and help at the clinics.

Volunteers should call the Oakland - South Alameda County Red Cross Chapter, 533 - 2326.

The county health agency will provide further information on the Swine Flu and vaccine through its information and referral service, 357 - 0121.

Zoning chief okays speedway farm plans

Alameda County Bureau

HAYWARD — The valley will add to its agricultural bounty while retaining the Altamont Speedway under terms of a compromise agreement worked out between county zoning administrator Richard Flynn and owners of the famed race track.

California - Northwest Capital Co. representative Charles Jessup, plagued by being unable to nurture landscaping required under his use permit, will sharecrop to grow barley the acreage not used for racing or parking.

Flynn agreed to the proposal and will allow use of a mobile home by the grounds' caretaker until the permit expires next September.

Jessup will have to present a new package at that time that does away with the temporary quarters. Mobile homes normally are permitted on county agricultural property only during construction of a permanent dwelling.

In another action, the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection in Dublin was granted a five-year extension on its permit to operate a nursery school in a suburban district at 7557 Amador Valley Boulevard.

The extension presented "no problem," said Flynn.

VCSD pool hours change

DUBLIN — The Valley Community Services District Parks and Recreation Department has changed their swimming pool hours.

The new schedule is: San Ramon Olympic Pool, Monday / Wednesday / Friday from 6 to 9 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday, 1 to 6 p.m.

Valley Community Swim Center: Tuesday / Thursday, 6 to 9 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday 1 to 6 p.m.

SRV schools may seek new funding

DANVILLE — The San Ramon Valley Unified School District has a plan to decrease the unemployment rate — build a school.

Supt. Allan Petersdorf thinks the district should apply for money available under the Public Works Capitol Development and Investment Act.

Funds are allocated according to the unemployment rate, he said.

"The unemployment rate in the East Bay is considerably higher than the national average," he said.

Petersdorf proposes applying for money to build a central intermediate school.

"There's no guarantee of getting it. The competition is severely keen.

Scout drive

John Lombard and Darwin Harris will join their Scout Troop 901 in conducting a paper drive on Sept. 25 and 26 throughout Pleasanton. Scouts will go door to door collecting papers. Residents who will not be home are asked to bundle tie and place their papers on the sidewalk. Further information can be had by calling Don Bowers at 846-5407.

City staff vets honored

LIVERMORE — Six city employes were recognized during awards ceremonies at the library Wednesday.

Jerry Vann Epps, senior engineering technician for public works, and Duane Huber, engineering inspector technician for the same department, received 10 year certificates of appreciation.

Recognition for five years' service went to Melvin Karline and Roy Manning, police department; Roy Robustelli, gardener, park and tree department; and Patricia Whitlow, city manager's secretary.

Presentations were made by City Manager Bill Parness and Mayor Helen Tirsell.

Livermore High's band seeks funds

LIVERMORE — School has just started, but the Livermore High marching band has been plugging away all summer.

The band will be having a marchathon around Livermore — a 20 - mile trek — on Saturday, Oct. 2. In addition, band members are selling candy. Proceeds from both efforts will help pay for buses to take them to three competitions this fall: Cupertino on Oct. 9 for a parade competition, Sacramento Oct. 16 for a half - time contest and Foothill High in Pleasanton Oct. 30 for a parade and half - time competition.

This is the band leader Mike Ward's third year. Specialty squads were called together the first part of summer vacation for 30 hours of intensive training from teachers recommended for their superior knowledge of baton, baton flags and color guard units.

The complete band gathered two weeks in August for two hours daily to start to learn the music for this year's half - time show. They were called together for four hours a day the week before school started.

Patient aides meet Tuesday

PLEASANTON — Volunteers who deliver library materials to local shut - ins and convalescent hospital patients will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the library, 4333 Black Ave.

Eleanor Tandowski, branch librarian, and Sylvia Nelson, volunteer contact person, will hostess the meeting, inviting volunteers to share problems, ideas, and to learn about the new cassette program for shut - ins.

Ruth Peterson, senior outreach coordinator for Alameda County Libraries, will discuss volunteer programs throughout the County and present a slide show of the program's operation.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer is also invited to the meeting to learn more about the service. Shut - ins wishing to receive books should call Nelson at 462-3535.
